Deal reached for warming shelter at SA

Volunteers still needed for shelter, kettle bell ringing

By MAGGIE HILLERY
Courier staff writer

After more than a month of community-wide effort, a path has been cleared to open an emergency warming shelter at The Salvation Army in Madison.

An effort involving Madison officials, River Valley Resources, The Salvation Army and other community volunteers has resulted in details being mapped and agreed upon for an overnight emergency warming shelter once more at the evangelical organization's center at Main and Walnut streets.

Both Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and Lt. Justin Hartley of The Salvation Army agree that the biggest remaining hurdle at the moment is the need for more volunteers who have been trained and passed background checks to work in the warming shelter when it is open.

"Because of a lack of funding, volunteers and adequate facilities, The Salvation Army's emergency winter shelter was in doubt," said Hartley, who along with his wife, Lt. Stephanie Hartley, heads The Salvation Army Center in Madison. "Due to the generosity of our community and the efforts of the City of Madison and other local organizations who have partnered with The Salvation Army, the organization has been able to agree on a temporary solution for an emergency winter shelter for this winter."

Whether or where there would be an emergency warming shelter this winter first became an issue in early November, when temperatures dropped below freezing and the center was not in a position to continue to provide shelter because of staffing and other support issues.

The immediate solution at that time came when Courtney had the city's Comfort Station on Main Street opened at night temporarily. As the holiday season and activities complicated use of that site, the shelter was moved to the Bicentennial Park restrooms where it has remained open on nights when the temperature falls below 32.

Rykers' keeps kids home for E-Learning as 25% out sick

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Students who attend Rykers' Ridge Elementary were allowed to stay home Friday for an E-Learning day to try to head off an outbreak of Influenza B, strep throat and respiratory illnesses that had gotten progressively worse throughout the school week.

Rykers' Ridge Principal Jill Mires said having the students stay home "allows students who are ill to get better and students who are well to avoid the outbreak." She said the school planned to be back to operation as usual on Monday.

According to Mires, 48 students were absent Thursday — about 25% of the entire enrollment — and the number had been going up all week.

"That's big for us," Mires noted. "We've lagged all week."

"We're going to be doing an extremely thorough cleaning and sanitizing of the entire school building (Thursday night and Friday) — we'll mop floors that don't always get mopped and sanitize all the handles and doorknobs throughout — to get rid of as many germs as we can," Mires said.

Jeff Studebaker, superintendent of Madison Consolidated Schools, said the outbreak hit Rykers' Ridge hardest, but there was some concern about other schools Wednesday before their enrollments showed recovery by Thursday.

"Yesterday we were a little concerned about a couple of other buildings but by (Thursday) our attendances other than Rykers' ranged from about 92% to 94% — that's about normal for us — so those schools rebounded nicely," Studebaker said.

"Another one of the concerns at Rykers' was the number of teachers we had out — four on Thursday and we were projecting five on Friday — and even some of our substitute teachers are out and we don't have a lot of substitutes anyway," Studebaker said.

Both Studebaker and Mires said they hope giving the students and

Leader of drug trafficking ring gets life in federal prison

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A federal judge sentenced the leader of a violent Indianapolis-based drug trafficking ring to life in prison Thursday. U.S. District Chief Judge Jane Magnus-Stinson handed down the sentence to Richard Grundy III, 30, following his August convictions on drug-trafficking and money laundering charges. Federal prosecutors said Grundy was the leader of a drug-trafficking organization that distributed more than 400 pounds of methamphetamine and large amounts of heroin, cocaine, and marijuana in Indianapolis from August 2016 through November 2017. "Mr. Grundy was under the mistaken impression he and his crew could run their criminal enterprise and flaunt their illegal activities in the face of the law without fear of consequence," said Special Agent in Charge Grant Mendenhall of the FBI in Indianapolis.

Prison official charged with molesting child

PENDLETON — The technology director at the Indiana Department of Correction has been charged with molesting a child at his home on prison property. Thomas Francum, who was suspended in August when the home in central Indiana was searched by investigators, is accused of molesting a child over a six-year period, state police said Wednesday. Francum, 51, was released on bond after his arrest. His attorney's office declined to comment Thursday. Francum lived in a leased home on the grounds of the Pendleton Correctional Facility in Madison County, about 25 miles (40 kilometers) northeast of Indianapolis.

State trooper OK after being dragged 15 feet

HOBART — A state trooper was dragged 15 feet while trying to remove a driver from a car during a traffic stop in Porter County, police said. Trooper Brian Runyon had minor injuries and was able to complete his shift Wednesday. It could have been worse: He fell into a lane on U.S. 30 after freeing himself. Runyon smelled marijuana after stopping a driver who was speeding. The driver was in the trooper's patrol car when he decided to run back to his own car. Police say the driver hit the gas while Runyon reached in to try to stop him. The man was later captured when he drove through a crash scene in Hobart a few miles away and fled on foot in Merrillville.

2 men charged with killing 3rd in arson

FOWLER — Two men have been charged with murder and arson in the death of a third man in a house fire, Indiana State Police said Thursday. Duane Scott Muse, 42 and Rhett Allen Martin, 43, both of Fowler, were arrested in connection with the death of Daniel C. Riegle, police said. Firefighters found the 60-year-old Riegle's body inside his burning Fowler home about 7:50 a.m. on Dec. 6. Muse and Martin are lodged inside the Benton County Jail. It's not clear whether either man has an attorney who might comment on the case. Police have not released Riegle's cause of death. Police also have not released a motive for the slaying. Fowler is about 70 miles south of Gary.

Elkhart police must track use of force

ELKHART — A police department has a reputation for the rough treatment of residents and offending officers are seldom held accountable, according to an external review conducted following the release of video showing two officers repeatedly punching a handcuffed man. The assessment of the Elkhart Police Department conducted by a former federal prosecutor was made public Thursday, the South Bend Tribune reported. The review, led by former U.S. Attorney Deborah Daniels, notes improvements made by Mayor Tim Neese, who ordered the study and named a new police chief in January after his predecessor resigned under fire. The former chief downplayed the actions of the officers in the video, who have been charged with federal civil rights crimes. Neese said at a news conference that the focus of the process "has been about transparency," adding: "Transparency is what the public will continue to receive."

Kentucky

Nickell sworn in as Supreme Court justice

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's newest Supreme Court justice was formally sworn in during a ceremony at the state Capitol. Justice Christopher Shea Nickell was elected in November to serve a district covering the state's 24 westernmost counties. Chief Justice John D. Minton administered the oath of office during Nickell's investiture ceremony on Wednesday. Nickell said he was honored to join the state's highest court. Minton said his newest colleague will bring practical experience to the court. Nickell formerly served as a member of the state Court of Appeals. He was elected to fill the Supreme Court vacancy resulting from Justice Bill Cunningham's retirement in February. Justice David C. Buckingham was appointed to fill the vacancy until the election.

Louisville reports first flu death of the season

LOUISVILLE — The city has reported its first death of the flu season. The victim who died Dec. 7 was an elderly person who had not been vaccinated and had underlying medical conditions, the Louisville Metro Department of Health and Wellness said in a news release Thursday. Kentucky health officials say the current flu season runs from September to May 2020. Louisville has seen a sharp rise in flu cases in the past two weeks, the department said. Through Nov. 30, there had been 1,111 flu cases this season in the state, according to the Kentucky Department for Public Health's weekly influenza report. No deaths had been reported through the end of November. There have been 124 flu deaths in Louisville since 2015. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that influenza has resulted in between 12,000 and 61,000 deaths each year in the United States since 2010, the department said.

Police charge 5 women in shoplifting plot

ELIZABETHTOWN — Authorities have charged five Illinois women in a $25,000 shoplifting scheme they say stretches from Illinois to Georgia. Each woman is charged with offenses including engaging in organized crime, news outlets report. The women were arrested early Tuesday after two of them stole more than $1,500 worth of items from a local Kroger, Elizabethtown police said. A security guard tried to stop the women, who then fled into an awaiting van that had a temporary Illinois license plate, police said. The van was stopped nearby and officers said it was filled with stolen merchandise including beauty products, makeup and "high value" merchandise. Additionally, police said they found records that indicated two 300-pound (136-kilogram) packages of suspected stolen property had been shipped to Atlanta from Illinois. Police also found a "log of locations" in the van that indicated where the thefts happened, according to an arrest citation. The logs detailed the items stolen, by which person and on what date, it says. The women are being held on $25,000 bonds. It's unclear if they have lawyers. Court records indicate the women are from Chicago. Police were still working Thursday to determine if the women's provided names and ages were accurate as they have been known to use aliases in past court cases, according to the arrest citation.

Vandals hit 2 churches on same street

EASTVIEW — Congregants entered two churches Sunday morning to find their houses of God in disarray, with items missing or destroyed. Bibles, church records and numerous sacred items like crosses were stolen from the Needham Cumberland Presbyterian Church and the Smith Chapel United Methodist Church in Eastview. Parishioners found a wrench in the pulpit of the 150-year-old Methodist church. It appeared to have been used to damage a wide array of items, including a piano, paintings, stained glass windows and more. Several holes had been beaten into a wall. "They did major damage," Pastor David Stephens said. "They just swung at everything." An antique quilt featuring the names of church members also was stolen, along with an American flag and other items. The 160-year-old Presbyterian church suffered a similar fate, with a smashed nativity scene, destroyed bathroom sinks, shredded records of former members and a burned shed containing extra decor. Neither church has surveillance cameras. State police are investigating and no arrests had been made in either case as of Wednesday. Both congregations have since cleaned up their sanctuaries.

Man receives 4 life sentences for crash

RADCLIFF — A judge has agreed with a jury's recommended sentence for a West Virginia man convicted in the deaths of two teenagers during a car chase. Shawn Welsh, 37, of Fairmont, West Virginia, received four concurrent life sentences Tuesday, The News-Enterprise reported. Welsh is eligible for parole after serving 20 years. A Hardin County jury convicted Welsh of two counts of murder and two counts of assault on Oct. 28. They recommended he serve a life sentence and the judge agreed. "A life sentence is necessary for the protection of society," Judge Ken Howard said. State police said Welsh was driving a stolen truck and leading police on a 21-mile (33-kilometer), 18-minute chase when he crashed into a car, killing 18-year-old Jacob Barber and 17-year-old Katarina Peeters on Oct. 20, 2018. Welsh's attorney Erin Hartman said her client was high during the pursuit and was "extremely remorseful."

Man charged with robbing 2 banks

PARIS — A man is accused of robbing nearly $8,000 from two banks in one day while brandishing a toy gun, police said. Cheikh Gueye, 35, was charged with robbery and resisting arrest Wednesday for targeting two banks, the Paris Police Department said in a statement posted to Facebook. Both banks were in Paris. Gueye is also a suspect in an attempted robbery at a third bank in Georgetown earlier that day, police said. Tellers at one of the banks told police the man slipped them a note demanding they hand over money or he would kill everybody, WKYT reported. As police were searching for him, another robbery was reported at a second bank, investigators told news outlets. Gueye was captured at a nearby grocery store where police determined the weapon he was carrying was fake.

Police Merit Board OKs promotions

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

The City of Madison's Police Merit Board held what could be its final meeting of 2019 Wednesday, finalizing the promotion of several officers and saying farewell to board secretary Derma Smith, who sits on the board as a member of city council but lost his bid for re-election in November.

The eight officers receiving promotion had received their new rank a year ago under probational status, but Merit Board members finalized that action with a unanimous vote Wednesday.

The officers and their ranks going forward include: Capt. Bruce Heaton, Lt. Season Jackson, Sgts. Ricky Harris and Shawn Scudder and Senior Patrolmen Seth Melton, Dylan Barnes, Kyle Cutshaw and Aaron Watson.

Smith, who was appointed to the Merit Board to represent Madison City Council, said he was sad to be leaving the position but appreciative of the opportunity to work with the board to make public safety and conditions for officers better in Madison. Several board members expressed their hope that Smith could remain on the board but it was not known if that is allowed now that he will leave council at the end of the year.

"We've done a lot of things and I'd like to see the board continue to build on that going forward," Smith said. "This is the most fun thing I've done in my four years on council."

At the same time, Smith could see more action as a board member before the end of the year. The Merit Board is involved now in an ongoing executive session hearing that was postponed twice because of developments beyond the group's control last week and while a makeup date has not been scheduled, board members said they hope the closed meeting, which deals with possible litigation related to the discipline or termination of an officer, could be resolved before Smith's departure.

"I'd like to keep you on here at least until that other thing is resolved," said Bill Andrew, the board chairman.

Smith agreed, noting after the meeting, that it might be difficult to bring in a new board member in the middle of an ongoing hearing.

In other reports, it was noted that the final drug dropoff opportunity of the year will be 10 a.m. to noon Saturday at the King's Daughters' Health building on Madison's hilltop. The event gives anyone an opportunity to properly dispose of expired and no longer needed prescriptions with no questions asked. The drugs are incinerated rather than being disposed of in a way that might contaminate groundwater or soil.

The Fraternal Order of Police Shop with a Cop holiday program will be at 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 19, starting with a meal and visit with Santa at the Madison VFW Post 1969 and a shopping trip for 40 to 50 children with police officers afterward at the Madison Walmart, all paid for by donations.

New federal work requirement won't impact Ind. SNAP

State had adopted requirements in '15

Although nearly 700,000 people nationwide will lose food stamp assistance due to new federal work requirement, no one in Indiana or Jefferson County will be affected because the state already follows those guidelines.

United States Secretary of Agriculture (USDA) Sonny Perdue announced last week new rules on work requirements for Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) assistance, often referred to as food stamps. The new rules severely limit a state's ability to grant waivers on work requirements for able-bodied adults without dependents and will nix food stamps for 688,000 people, the USDA reported. It will save them about $5.5 billion over five years.

Under current rules, people between the ages of 18 and 49 without children or disability are required to work at least 20 hours a week for more than three months over a 36-month period to receive SNAP assistance. States have long been granted waivers on the work requirement due to high-unemployment areas, but starting April 1, they'll only be able to obtain regional waivers for areas with unemployment higher than 6%.

Indiana is unaffected because it reinstated work requirements for SNAP in 2015, under then-Gov. Mike Pence. At the time, the USDA was telling states they could reapply for waivers since the economy had not yet fully recovered from the effects of the Great Recession, but Indiana declined, according to the Times of Northwest Indiana. The decision disqualified more than 33,000 Hoosiers — 68% of Indiana SNAP recipients subject to the work requirement — from food stamps.

Of those denied, nearly 5,000 found work and eventually earned too much money to continue qualifying for SNAP. Others were forced to turn to charity programs, food banks and local government assistance.

State records show 2,591 recipients and 1,284 households in Jefferson County receive SNAP, as of October. The state issues over $300,000 a month to cover benefits for the county.

No injuries in Carroll school bus crash

48 Cartmell Elementary students checked at hospital as precaution

Courier staff report

A Carroll County School District bus collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Park and Highland Avenues in Carrollton Wednesday and 48 students were transported to Carroll County Memorial Hospital for evaluation.

According to Carrollton Police Sgt. Tim Givident, there were no injuries and the trip to the hospital was precautionary. He said the bus was one of five buses transporting students from Cartmell Elementary School to "A Charlie Brown Christmas" program at the Taft Theater in Cincinnati. The other four buses continued on with their field trip.

"No students were seriously injured, but we want to remind everyone to exercise caution around our buses," said Mark Willhoite, chief operations officer for the district. "Safety is our first priority, and we collaborate with law enforcement to ensure that motorists follow the rules of the road."

The bus, driven by Ed Humble, 72, of Worthville, was turning left onto Park Avenue from Highland Avenue at 8:30 a.m. as the traffic control light was changing from green to yellow when it collided with a 2004 Pontiac Grand Prix driven by Barry Sutherland, 56, of Bedford, Kentucky, who was traveling east in Highland Avenue.

No charges have been filed in the wreck and the incident is still under investigation, said Givident.

Two ambulances from Carroll County Emergency Medical Services arrived on the scene but all 48 students were transported by bus to Carroll County Memorial Hospital. The Carroll County School District is a public school system that operates within the geographic boundaries of Carroll County, Kentucky. The district serves around 1,900 students K-12.

I-65 traffic stop yields drug, weapon charges on 4 from Michigan

Courier staff report

Four Michigan residents were arrested on drug and weapon charges Wednesday following a traffic stop on Interstate 65 in Jackson County.

The investigation began around 12:30 p.m. when Trooper Jason Hankins, Indiana State Police-Versailles All Crimes Policing Team, stopped a 1999 Toyota car for a traffic violation on I-65 northbound near the 38 mile marker near Crothersville, Indiana. During the course of the traffic stop, Hankins smelled the odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle.

During a search of the vehicle, officers located more than 600 grams (about 1.3 pounds) of marijuana, methamphetamine, digital scales, drug paraphernalia and a handgun. All four occupants of the vehicle were arrested on charges of dealing marijuana, possession of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, possession of handgun without a permit and possession of paraphernalia.

Those charged included the driver, Mercedes N. Santibanez, 23, and passengers

S.R. 256 to reopen east of Austin for winter shutdown

Courier staff report

State Road 256 east of Austin is scheduled to reopen for the winter months on Monday, weather permitting.

Indiana Department of Transportation contractor Milestone Contractors resumed work on the nearly $18 million, multi-phase reconstruction project in April. The projected completion date for the entire project is October 2021, but work is currently progressing ahead of schedule.

The project includes rebuilding and widening S.R. 256 between U.S. 31 and S.R. 203 in Scott County, in addition to replacing the bridge over Hutto Creek, an intersection realignment at Coffee Pot Road and adding a center left turn lane at S.R. 203.

Crews will complete temporary striping and guardrail installation this weekend before opening the roadway Monday for the winter months. The road will then close again in early spring 2020 for the project to continue to completion.

Residents view proposed upgrades to Crystal Beach pool

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

About two dozen residents got a look Thursday evening at proposed floor plans for updating the bathhouse at the city-owned Crystal Beach swimming pool, where the outside appearance would be largely unchanged but the inside would be vastly different from how it has been for 81 years.

The biggest change to the outside would be the addition of an elevator on the east end of the building to provide handicap access to the second floor. The elevator would be connected to the building on both floors with glass elevator lobbies. A wraparound deck would be replaced. The one there now is not the original deck, but there already were plans to replace it when a city worker fell through it a couple of weeks ago, said city planner Nicole Schell. Another exterior change is likely to be the entrance door with a replacement for the rollup door, but that decision has not been made, she said.

On the inside, the first floor would be demolished and the floor would be lowered to eliminate the need for a step down to go to the pool. On the men's side, a community shower would be replaced with shower stalls like the women's side now has. The showers on the women's side would be relocated, as would the toilets and sinks. A family restroom would be added. Both the men's and women's sides would have diaper-changing tables. Everything would be wheelchair-accessible.

On the second floor, restrooms that are unused would be replaced. A catering kitchen would be added. The center of the second floor would be 3,000 square feet of open space. The wood floor, formerly a roller rink, would be restored.

The proposed changes at Crystal Beach are a Stellar project for the city. The state designated Madison a Stellar community two years ago, clearing the way for funds to be available for projects. The Crystal Beach overhaul still needs to go through the Section 106 process because it is in a historic district; the city's Historic Board; and a public hearing before an application for funds is submitted to the state Office of Community and Rural Affairs, Schell said.

If all goes smoothly and the project is approved, work could start after the pool season ends in August 2020 and be finished by the opening of the 2021 season.

Fire damage minor at Hong Kong Kitchen

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

Dinner was interrupted at the Hong Kong Kitchen in downtown Madison when fire broke out in the dining room at about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Madison Fire Department crews arrived to find smoke in the restaurant and basement. They were at the scene for about an hour, cutting through the wooden window display platform in the front corner of the located 102 East Main Street eatery, to investigate what appeared to be an electrical fire.

Rick Russell and his wife, Lisa, were waiting for their order when they saw smoke coming from the front of the store near a Christmas tree in the window display.

"It was smoking really good at one time. And fire was shooting out of the corner of the window right there," Rick Russell said.

Customers ran outside while restaurant staff dumped pitchers of water onto the fire from the kitchen and a nearby drink cooler. Once everything looked under control, Russell said he and his wife went back inside to eat, but were interrupted a couple minutes later by firefighters who evacuated the building.

Damage appeared minimal and the restaurant opened Thursday at its regular time.

faculty Friday through Monday away from each other will help stem the spread of illness and let Rykers' finish the final week before Christmas break strong.

"We want to get ahead of it a little bit and scrub everything down really good," Studebaker said. "The (Jefferson County) Health Department recommended it and we agreed. We want to get everybody well and finish out the first semester strong next week."

Southwestern Schools has had a few cases of students out sick with abdominal issues and upper respiratory illnesses but not at a level that would require canceling classes. The hope is that a flu clinic the district hosted with the Jefferson County Health Department innoculated enough students that an outbreak can be avoided.

Nationally, the U.S. winter flu season is off to its earliest start in more than 15 years as an early barrage of illness in the South has begun to spread more broadly, leading some to believe the flu season could peak much earlier than normal, health officials said.

"It really depends on what viruses are circulating. There's not a predictable trend as far as if it's early it's going to be more severe, or later, less severe," said Scott Epperson, who tracks flu-like illnesses for the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Health officials tend to consider a flu season to be officially underway when — for at least three weeks in a row — a significant percentage of U.S. doctor's office visits are due to flu-like illnesses. That's now happened, CDC officials said recently.

The agency estimates that there have already been 1.7 million flu illnesses, 16,000 hospitalizations, and 900 flu-related deaths nationally.

Flu is widespread in 16 states — the worst in six southern states stretching from Texas to Georgia — and the flu strain causing illnesses in most parts of the country is a surprise — the B/Victoria virus that normally doesn't abound until March or April.

The latest statistics by the Indiana Department of Health, a report released Friday, Dec. 6, indicate influenza-like illness is widespread here but with minimal activity so far. The spread in Kentucky is moderate but more regional.

Meanwhile, the US Centers for Disease Controls and Prevention has noted that seasonal influenza activity in the US has been elevated for the past four weeks and continues to increase with about 10.2% of respiratory specimens testing positive for influenza viruses — primarily B/Victoria followed by A(H1N1) pdm09 and A(H3N2) — with the predominant virus varying by region.

The Jefferson County Health Department, 715 Green Road, Madison, has limited flu vaccine available — including some of the high dose vaccine for age 65 and older — but it's mainly available to uninsured and Medicaid patients. The department handles cases on a walk-in bases from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, but it's a good idea to call ahead at 812-273-1942 for more information.

Those with health insurance should seek flu shots at local pharmacies and health care providers.

agreement whereby the City of Madison, The Salvation Army and River Valley Resources have worked collaboratively to identify the resources necessary to re-open their warming center," Courtney said Friday morning. "However, without more community investment in volunteer resources, sustainable solutions won't be achieved. I encourage more community involvement and am grateful for our community's support."

"We understand that this is not a permanent solution to this ongoing issue in our community," Justin Hartley said. "The Salvation Army will continue to work together with our city government and other agencies to find an answer to help our community best help those in need."

Courtney has led an effort to raise money for what is being called the City of Madison Humanitarian Fund. Donations to that fund can be dropped off at city hall. That money will be used for operational, planning and potential capital expenditures for the emergency warming shelter. Courtney said $16,500 of a $20,000 goal for this year has been raised and they plan to use those funds to enable Salvation Army to hire a seasonal shelter director to get through this year and help put in place plans for the future.

Although an effort has been made to solicit volunteers for the shelter and to make sure they are trained and staffed according to accepted guidelines for shelter workers, so far only five people have been through the training.

Depending on the numbers seeking shelter, Courtney said, three to six or six to 12 workers will be needed to staff areas for both men and women.

The agreement the city and Salvation Army reached puts the temperature trigger at 32 degrees by 5 p.m. When that happens, the center will open the overnight shelter at 7 p.m. provided there are enough trained and certified staff and volunteers and resources volunteers to spend the night, Hartley said. Dinner will be provided for those who are in the shelter and the facility will remain open until 7 a.m. the next day.

Anyone under the influence of drugs or alcohol will not be admitted. As the shelter has done in the past, if someone enters and decides to leave after the doors are locked, that person will not be allowed re-entry that night.

The Salvation Army provides breakfast at 9 a.m. and lunch at noon weekdays through its ongoing feeding program. Anyone who has spent the night in the emergency shelter and left at 7 a.m. can return for the meals during the day. Coffee and donuts are served Sundays from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m.

The Salvation Army also provides free blankets, coats, hats, gloves and warm layers based on funding and donations. Those in need of warm clothing should go to the facility during business hours Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday 8:30 a.m. to noon. The Salvation Army also is continuing to accept donations and seek additional resources to provide cold weather gear.

This is a critical time of the year for The Salvation Army because the demands for its resources coincide with the holiday season when the Red Kettle campaign and other donations are sought to secure the budget for next year. There are two full shopping weekends left before Christmas. The kettle drives officially close Christmas Eve, although Justin Hartley emphasized they will continue to take donations after the kettles close.

Hartley noted there are many expenses the agency incurs that may not be obvious to the public. In addition to the meals served weekdays throughout the year, the center makes Christmas happen for many families in the area who would not otherwise receive gifts. It is on the scene at fires, accidents, disasters and other situations in the area that require firefighters and police and serves those first responders at the scene while helping victims who need shelter or other items. It also provides educational and social programs for youth and families.

And, as Hartley noted, there are costs that any business has, such as utilities, building repairs, vehicle maintenance, office supplies and salaries. This is the time of year when most of those donations and pledges come in, he said, so the budget for the next year can be put together by the end of the year.

Hartley noted earlier Thursday that volunteers to ring the bells at Red Kettle collections are always needed and this year is no exception. "There's always more shifts," he said, encouraging anyone who wants to volunteer to sign up on the their website and "meet us there."

A concern in this year's drive is that the Thanksgiving holiday fell later this year — the Salvation Army doesn't begin its bell-ringing until after Thanksgiving — and having that holiday fall in late November pushed back the start of the drive by five days, leaving fewer days to collect donations.

Hartley said just about anyone can staff a kettle — the orientation process for volunteers takes about 20 minutes — and most shifts are flexible enough to fit volunteer's schedule. Anyone wishing to volunteer time to the kettle drive can stop by the Salvation Army Center at 331 E. Main St., call 812-265-2157 or register online at www.RegisterToRing.org

While some shoppers may never come into contact with one of the iconic red kettles because they shop online, they can still contribute through the agency's virtual kettle — donations can be earmarked by zip code — at give.salvationarmyusa.org

Newly-minted RN Crozier wrapping up college career

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

Anybody who has played a Division I sport or gone to nursing school knows how time-consuming and energy-draining each can be. For the past five years, Olivia Crozier has done both.

That double life has led to a lot of sleepless nights, grueling schedules and headaches but for the former Madison Lady Cub, wouldn't have had it any other way.

"It's been awesome. I've absolutely loved it. It's been a challenge for sure, but I've learned from it," Crozier said on Sunday. "Something that is super hard is nursing and so is Division I basketball and I think that's why a lot of colleges, when I was recruiting, didn't think I could play basketball and do this major. But Samford luckily has such a great coaching staff and such a great nursing staff, that both of them were willing to work with me."

Crozier was in Lexington, Kentucky, Sunday where her Samford Bulldogs took on 15th-ranked Kentucky in a women's basketball matchup. Four days later she was walking down the aisle, accepting her degree and getting pinned for the career she has always wanted.

It's a journey that she never thought she would make. She had always wanted to play Division I basketball and she always wanted to be a nurse, but the chance to do both always seemed like just a dream.

When Crozier was in eighth grade at Madison she received her first Division I letter. By the time she was a sophomore, they were coming in every day. She eventually chose Samford — after initially signing with Southeast Missouri State — largely because of the chance to go to nursing school.

Accepted into Samford's nursing program from the start, Crozier has attacked the books the way she attacks opposing defenses. She took a medical redshirt as a freshman after suffering an ankle injury and it proved to be both a blessing and a curse. It allowed her to concentrate on her studies that first year but by year four, she was deep into her clinicals and sometimes pulling three 12-hour shifts a week — all while still playing basketball.

"I'd been in from 7 p.m. to 7 a.m., sleep for about two and a half hours, wake up and come to practice. Then maybe do some homework and then go in for another 12-hour night shift," Crozier said. "It was crazy but I love both so I made it through. I think it's only going to make me better in the long run."

It didn't take first-year Samford coach Carley Kuhns long to see what kind of person she was coaching.

"She's been a joy to get to know. I've only known her since April and the effect that she's had on my life has been so positive," Kuhns said. "She's a very hard worker. It takes a very, very special person to go through nursing school and play college athletics, especially at the Division I level. That speaks volumes in that regard. Her ability to do both at a high level is very impressive."

But those 12-hour shifts did have an impact. Try as she might, Crozier simply couldn't run away from the exhaustion and at times it showed on the basketball court. But true to form, she never complained.

"Sometimes she'll come from a night clinical and then come to practice and I'll say 'Liv looks a little tired today' and at the end of the practice she'll tell me she had a 12-hour clinical. I'm like 'what?'' Kuhns said with a laugh. "She doesn't complain, she just does it time and time again. It's really nice and I probably take it for granted because she's that way. She's just

Madison beats Columbus North 43-34 for 20th win

sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's wrestling team reached the 20-win mark with a hard-fought 43-34 victory Thursday at Columbus North.

The Cubs won eight of the 14 matches, six by either fall or forfeit, and avenged a 60-21 loss to the Bull Dogs a year ago.

"We had three of our normal starters out of the lineup tonight and we pulled together for a great team effort," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said.

Madison jumped out to a quick 15-0 lead after Noah Burkhardt (120 pounds) picked up a win by forfeit, Jacob McRoberts (126) scored a pin at the buzzer and Tazman Shipley (132) won a 7-2 decision.

After North scored its first win at 138 pounds, the Cubs increased their margin to 37-4 on pins by Luke McCarty (145), Mason Long (152) and Van Skinner (170) and a major decision by Trenton Stockdale (160).

The Bull Dogs answered with five-straight wins — including a victory at 220 pounds where Madison star Tucker Adams was forced to injury default — to close the gap to 37-34 but the Cubs pulled out the victory when Bryce Turner (113) scored a win by forfeit in the final match of the night.

"Freshman Tazman Shipley stepped into the varsity lineup at 132 for injured Brayden Richards and got a big win for us. Even though he lost I was super impressed with the amount of heart and no quit attitude Emmett (Willhite) showed tonight," the coach said. "Jacob really got us going. That was the catapult that got us off to such a good start."

The injury to Adams, a semi-state qualifier a year ago, came when the senior took an awkward fall and injured his elbow while leading 3-0. He ended up withdrawing but Skinner said the injury isn't serious.

"Tucker wanted to keep going but was having a hard time with range of motion in his arm. So we decided to injury default," Skinner said. "The good news the injury isn't serious and with a bit of a break in action over the next week or so he should recover fully."

Madison (20-1) hosts Silver Creek on Tuesday and competes in the Jeff Classic at Jeffersonville on Friday, Dec. 20.

Madison's boys won every event to swim to a dual meet win at Greensburg on Thursday.

Madison's boys beat the Pirates 122-29. Although the girls dropped a 127-49 loss in their meet, it was still a successful night for the Lady Cubs in their fifth meet in 10 days.

Ellie Foley scored 21 points and Bella Marcum added 15 as the Southwestern Lady Rebels won again, this time 57-47 at New Washington on Thursday.

Trinity McLain and Isabel Brooks each scored six points for Southwestern while Ashton Goode had five and Abby Fulton four.

Southwestern, now 8-2 on the season, hosts Trimble County on Saturday and travels to Borden on Tuesday.

Trimble, now 2-3 overall and 0-1 in district play, was to face another district foe on Friday at Oldham County as part of a boys-girls doubleheader. Trimble then closes out 29th District play at home against South Oldham on Monday.

Shawe falls at Ripley

Shawe Memorial girls basketball lost 56-11 at South Ripley on Thursday.

On Tuesday, the Hilltoppers fell 60-9 loss at home to Scottsburg. Abigail Hill led Shawe with three points while Calli Alderman, Phoebe Grote and Katie Jacobs scored two each.

Former Madison players Olivia Crozier (above, 32) meets with current Cubs (from left) Jessie Dyer, Meghan Eades, Daesja Jay, Morgan Cahall, Lundun Perry and Jade Nutley, who made the trip Sunday to see Crozier play at Kentucky. Crozier attempts to get off a shot (right) as Kentucky's Jaida Roper (32) and Keke McKinney defend. Crozier calls out a defense (below) as the Wildcats' Roper attacks. great."

Crozier has spent her college career in Alabama and, as a result, hasn't had many chances to play close to home. Her game at Kentucky on Sunday was her second in four years at Samford and it afforded her a chance to play in front of a large contingent of fans from Madison, including members of her former high school basketball team.

Crozier admitted that playing in front of so many local fans brought out the nerves, but her excitement trumped all.

"I was nervous but I'm always so excited. I love it when people come and there's a big crowd. I always try to get as many as I could. It's just good to know that hard work pays off and they still support me," Crozier said. "I'm just trying to show (her former team) that it doesn't matter where you're from or how big you are. We have people on our team that are 5-foot tall. Before I went to school, there were people that were saying 'Oh, you're too short.' No you're not. If you put in the work, you'll be there. Just showing them that, it's pretty sweet. Then you get rewarded."

Even though Crozier has graduated, she will stay at Samford through the rest of the season. She has enrolled with a second major in order to continuing playing, but once the season is over, she'll be headed off to work.

Crozier has already been hired by the University of Alabama-Birmingham's Heart and Lung Transplant ICU and she will start on March 30. She'll have hardly any chance to say goodbye before jumping in with both feet.

"It's really crazy. I'll get done playing basketball and a few weeks later I'll be working," said Crozier, officially now a BSNRN. "I have graduation and I'll still take classes and have a second major that second semester, but March 30 I'll start a job. That's just crazy."

She's thrilled to get a chance to work at UAB but she hasn't ruled out a return to her hometown, something she admits missing dearly. She also said that she might give coaching a try, down the road.

"I would love one day to go back and help anybody that wants to get good. Guards, posts, I know what we do here on the Division I level, I can get you to where you need to be," Crozier said. "So, maybe a little coaching in the future. Maybe. If it works with nursing, then I'm there."

Kuhns, for one, knows that Crozier will be a success no matter what she does. People like Crozier don't come along every day.

"Just as she's consistent off the floor, she's consistent on the floor. As a coach, sometimes that's all you want out of a kid," Kuhns said. "She's a leader and I think the other players respond to her because she's so consistent and such a great teammate. She's the type of kid you want on your team."

Historic Madison Inc. awards volunteers

Boones named Reindollar preservation award recipients

Molly Dodge and John Staicer of Historic Madison Inc. announced Mary Beth and Todd Boone as recipients of the Dorothy Inglis Reindollar Historic Preservation Award. (Courier staff photos by Elisabeth Moore)

Molly Dodge and John Stacier announced the departure of HMI Director of Programs Rhonda Deeg (middle) during the Historic Madison Inc. annual Volunteer Recognition and Holiday Gathering.

Courier staff report

The Board of Directors of Historic Madison Inc. announced Mary Beth and Todd Boone as recipients of the Dorothy Inglis Reindollar Historic Preservation Award and honored HMI's many volunteers at the annual Volunteer Recognition and Holiday Gathering Wednesday, Dec. 11 at the Shrewsbury-Windle House National Historic Landmark.

The Reindollar award honors the memory of Dotti Reindollar, a longtime community leader and preservationist, by recognizing exemplary preservation or restoration accomplishments in Madison and Jefferson County. The Boones were honored for their rehabilitation of a number of structures in Madison's historic district, most recently at 113 W. Main S. and 320 Central Ave.

Both structures are in key locations in the Madison National Historic Landmark District and contribute to the ongoing revitalization of the city. The Boones own and operate the properties as a boutique store and a bed and breakfast, respectively.

HMI President and Executive Director John Staicer also honored volunteers who help Historic Madison year round. The HMI Board Member of the Year was Molly Dodge for her support and service to HMI and the Madison community. Volunteer of the Year was Larry Cummins, a new volunteer who was awarded for his dedication to the Schroeder Saddletree Factory.

Two volunteer recognition certificates were given for many years of service, one to Eaton and Joyce Randles for their dedication to the Jeremiah Sullivan House as docents, and one to Lydia Manaugh for her volunteer service at the Dr. Hutchings Office for more than 40 years. Star Awards were given to Crystal Bayne, Owen McCall, Josh Owsley and Dan Smith for the many hours they contributed to staffing the museum properties this year. A total of more than 1,700 volunteer hours were contributed in 2019.

Stacier also announced the departure of Rhonda Deeg as HMI Director of Programs. Deeg, who has served the organization since 2012, is leaving at the end of the year to devote full-time to her stained glass business, RLD Glass Art & Restoration.

Historic Madison Inc. is a not-for-profit historic preservation organization founded in 1960 that has played a key role in the preservation, restoration, education and development of Madison's National Historic Landmark District. The organization owns and operates 11 historic properties, four of which are open as museums to the public on a regular basis and staffed by volunteers.

Women's Giving Circle is now accepting grant cycle proposals

Courier staff report

The Women's Giving Circle has changed the application process for its next annual grant cycle.

This year, nonprofit organizations serving women and children in Jefferson County can submit an online initial proposal of projects and programs of $5,000 to $10,000 for the grant cycle. Projects must meet the Women's Giving Circle's grant guidelines and criteria and must have the greatest potential to help women and children in Jefferson County in the following priority categories: education, economic empowerment, physical and mental health, and violence and crime prevention.

The online proposal platform will be open for applications from noon Jan. 1, 2020 to Jan. 31, 2020. The grant cycle guidelines, criteria and online initial proposal link are available at https://cfmjc.org/womens_giving_circle.php

Following the deadline, the Women's Giving Circle grants committee will review all submitted proposals and select up to three to present at the Women's Giving Circle Annual Meeting in April 2020.

These annual grants are made possible by the membership of the Women's Giving Circle. The Women's Giving Circle is a group of philanthropic-minded women of all ages, means and backgrounds who combine their financial strength to make a positive change for the women and children throughout Jefferson County.

Annual membership (Jan. 1 to Dec. 31) to the Women's Giving Circle is open to all women and requires a $100 tax-deductible contribution. Junior memberships are $50 and open to girls ages 18 and under. Of the $100 annual donation, $75 goes in a fund for immediate granting and $25 is placed in an endowment fund for future granting. The junior membership is split $25/$25.

Assets of the Women's Giving Circle are held and maintained at the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County.

For more information about the Women's Giving Circle grant cycle, contact Kelly Miller at 812-274-0242, email kelly@cfmjc.orc or visit https://cfmjc.org/womens_giving_circle.php

Community Foundation announces new scholarship

Courier staff report

The Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County is currently accepting applications for the Carolyn Bruce Spicer and Gene E. Spicer Nursing Scholarshop.

This scholarship is open to registered nurses living in Jefferson, Clark, Jennings, Ripley, Scott or Switzerland counties in Indiana or Carroll or Trimble counties in Kentucky, who have completed their associate degree in nursing and are planning to pursue a bachelor's degree in nursing. Online applications will be accepted until noon on Friday, Jan. 31, 2020.

Carolyn Bruce Spicer was a nurse for 45 years. She and her husband, Gene, helped create this endowment to help area nurses attain the next level of their education. This endowment will also award a scholarship to a Madison Consolidated High School senior planning to pursue an associate or bachelor's degree in nursing.

Applicants can create a profile and complete the online application at https://cfmjc-scholarships.communityforce.com

"We are excited to add this new scholarship for adult learners to our annual awards," said Community Foundation staff member Kelley Hoagland, who oversees the scholarship process with co-worker Julie Wells. "We thank Carolyn and Gene for helping registered nurses in the area reach the next level of their educational goals."

Hoagland shared a few tips to help applicants as they apply for this scholarship:

- Don't wait until the last minute to submit your application.
- Read and follow all instructions.
- Complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) as soon as possible in order to upload the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) page of the report.
- Have a PDF copy of your transcript reflecting the completion of your associate degree in Nursing.
- Contact the Community Foundation staff members if you experience technical issues prior to the application deadline date.

Established in 1991, the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County seeks to build a strong, vibrant community by helping donors provide perpetual funding for the people, projects and passions of Jefferson County.

For more information about Community Foundation scholarships, call Hoagland at 812-274-0243 or by email kelleyh@cfmjc.org or visit https://cfmjc.org/schol.pho

BRIDGE

WOULD YOU TURN THIS WAY OR THAT?

Seneca, a Roman Stoic philosopher and author, wrote, "Speech is the mirror of the mind."

Nature produces mirrors. Amino acids are important, combining to form proteins, and most of them come in two forms that are mirror images, the L- and R- versions. (The L- amino acid is usually the beneficial one.)

Today's deal made me think of that because the North and South minor suits are mirror images of each other. South, in three no-trump, must play on one or the other, and which he chooses affects how he handles his spades. In what way?

The auction is the most common of all. As Bob Hamman said, if you are not sure what to bid, but three no-trump is a possibility, that is the right choice.

South starts with six top tricks: one spade, three hearts, one diamond and one club. If he takes a winning minor-suit finesse, that will see him home. However, as you are well aware, in newspaper columns and teaching deals, finesses almost never work.

Which finesse should South take?

It does not matter -- as long as he makes the right play in spades.

Suppose declarer prefers the diamond finesse. Then, if he wins trick one and loses to East's diamond king, a spade return will give the defenders five tricks. Instead, South must hold up his spade ace until the third round, then run the diamond jack.

Alternatively, if declarer does win trick one, he must cross to the board with a heart and take the club finesse. Yes, it loses, but his spade jack is safe from attack with West on lead.

Money changes people, including suspicious step son

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: My wife of more than 31 years recently passed away. She had three children from a previous marriage. We had none. She left behind a large sum of money from her savings and IRA for them. Her eldest son has a mental condition, and most of his needs are met by the state of New York and Social Security. Her youngest son has an intermittent drug problem. Her middle son conned us by acting like the responsible son. She trusted him to look after his two brothers and to split all her money equally and empowered the middle son to act as her agent after she was gone.

I had begun to be suspicious of him when, as she was dying, he took an unhealthy interest in her finances. Long story short, right after she passed away, he looted all her accounts for himself, telling his younger brother that she left no money for anyone. Surprisingly, my wife's sister (a real loser, as it turned out) backed up this lie.

I set him straight, showing him exactly what she had left behind for all three of her sons. Unfortunately, nothing can be done. This is a warning to anyone who feels they can trust someone when it comes to money. Money changes people. I advise all people with significant funds to be disbursed to then set up a trust and appoint an impartial executor or trustee. My wife is probably spinning so much in her urn it that looks like a cyclone in there. — Husband of the Betrayed.

Dear Husband: I appreciate your sharing your wisdom; I'm just sorry it was so hard-earned. How terrible to lose your beloved partner of more than 30 years and then watch the ones she trusted behave in such disappointing ways.

It's worth consulting an attorney, if you haven't already, to verify that there isn't anything that can be done. Whatever the outcome, your dishonest stepson is the lesser for it. Those who put money before family will never know what it is to truly be rich in the way that counts. I am so sorry for your loss.

Dear Annie: Regarding dating married men: I've been there. I was 22, and he was 37. He was very good-looking, had a great job, lived in the suburbs ... and had a terrible marriage. He saw me as the hippie — living the life that he missed. He and I would spend time together and take long walks, go for drinks, have a great physical relationship, etc. Then he would go home to his wife and kids, to the mortgage, the bills, etc. In other words, he would go home to real life!

I was his escape, his fantasy, his vacation. We didn't end up together — though his marriage eventually broke up because his wife found out about the revolving door of women in his life. If you think that you have a permanent relationship with a married man, then give him an ultimatum and a deadline. I guarantee you that he will find many reasons to not follow through. If he does follow through and you commit to forever, eventually you will be his middle-aged wife with the burdens of real life. Then, he will, again, need an escape. And there will be "the you that you were when he first found you" waiting to give him a shoulder to cry on. — Been There, Done That

Dear Been There: If your letter convinces even one person to stop waiting for him to leave his wife (or her to leave his husband), it will have done good work. Thanks for writing.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now!
